I had a few moments of quiet to look at your take on John's comments. I do think his review was helpful. I tried even a few more changes to either soften the tone or to "head off" potential wrong assumptions a reader could make. See what you think,

Few totally new comments, but I used the feature where one can comment on a comment.

Ravi,

My initial reaction was that John was not following our argument.

But, he is a close reader and typically very willing to make a point, so I reread the comments several times.

After that, I can see a number of places where we could be more clear.

Take a look also at my thoughts about his comments. I have not sent to him. I started writing rebuttals and then circled back to see if I was being fair. So, it is more the current state of play in my mind.
